IMMA

Etel Adnan

Until 13 Sept 2015 / East Wing, Ground Floor Galleries

Now in her 90s, Adnan is an extraordinary creative voice and force of artistic renown. She moves freely between writing and art, poetry and tapestry and all aspects of her creative output are reflected in the exhibition. A selection of Adnan's enigmatic and colourful oil showcase her use of rapid, thick strokes representing the landscapes of California and the Mediterranean Sea. These works appear alongside a series of delicate leporellos that fuse Adnan's parallel practice as artist and writer. The exhibition also includes a black and white film, poetry and recordings of the artist reading from some of her most recently published poems and writings. Adnan was born in 1925 in Beirut and has been one of the leading voices in contemporary Arab American literature since the 1960s.

Stan Douglas

Mise en Scène

Until 20 Sept 2015 / West Wing, First Floor Galleries

Stan Douglas (born Canada 1960) makes filmic and photographic investigations into mistaken identity; unstable memory, reconstruction, reinvention and the long shadow the past casts into the present. This exhibition focuses his recent photography, including the acclaimed series, Malabar People, Mid Century Studio and Disco Angola, and includes the major new film work Luanda Kinshasa. This film is the documentation of a fictitious Miles Davis jazz recording and expands Douglas's interest in the African origins of the music scene in New York in the early 1970s. Together, these works provide a rich introduction to of the practice of Stan Douglas, one of the most interesting and important artists of our time.

EL LISSITZKY

The Artist and the State

With Rossella Biscotti, Maud Gonne, Nürja Güell, Alice Milligan, Sarah Pierce and Hito Steyerl

30 Jul - 18 Oct / Garden Galleries

El Lissitzky: The Artist and the State brings together a significant body of works from the Van Abbemuseum Eindhoven by the Russian avant-garde artist El Lissitzky (1890 – 1941) whose work is shown in the context the work of Irish nationalist poet and writer Alice Milligan (1865-1953), and her collaborator Maud Gonne, (1866-1953). El Lissitzky, Milligan and Gonne envisaged their creative practices as tools for social and political change, although realising this through very different aesthetic strategies. A contemporary counterpoint to the historical narrative is provided by the work of four artists whose work reflects on the position of the artist within our society now and the role of art in reflecting a cohesive experience of civil society.

IMAGE El Lissitzky / Klinom krasnym bej belych, Beat the Whites with the Red Wig (1919–1920) reprint 1966 / offset on paper / 48,8 x 69,2 cm / Collection Van Abbemuseum, Eindhoven, The Netherlands / Peter Cox, Eindhoven, The Netherlands

Presented with the support of Yeats 2015.

The participation of the Dutch-based artist Rossella Biscotti is made possible with financial support from the Mondriaan Fund.

Chloe Dewe Mathews

Shot at Dawn

9 Oct 2015 – 7 Feb 2016 / Gordon Lambert Galleries, Ground Floor

Shot at Dawn is a new body of work by the British photographer Chloe Dewe Mathews that focuses on the sites at which British, French and Belgian troops were executed for cowardice and desertion between 1914 and 1918. The project comprises images of twenty-three locations at which the soldiers were shot or held in the period leading up to their execution. All are seasonally accurate and were taken as close as possible to the precise time of day at which the executions occurred.

Shot at Dawn is commissioned by the Ruskin School of Art at the University of Oxford as part of 14–18 NOW, WW1 Centenary Art Commissions.

Grace Weir 3 Different Nights, recurring

6 Nov 2015 – 6 March 2016 / West Wing, First Floor Galleries

IMMA presents an exhibition by one of Ireland's most respected artists; Grace Weir. The exhibition includes some 40 works including three major new film commissions, A Reflection of Light, Black Square and Dark Room and these are contextualised with a group of works that span over 20 years of Weir's creative output. These include a series of photograms, a new series of paper works developed using non light fast inks that will fade deliberately over time and an installation work. Working primarily in the moving image and installation, Grace Weir is concerned with aligning a lived experience of the world with knowledge and theory.

3 Different Nights, recurring will be presented as an activated project that will develop whilst at IMMA. The research informing the new work will be developed and made evident with a series of performative lectures and experiments, connecting the audience with the scientific explorations and collaborations that underpin Weir's work.

Meetings: Into the studio of Edward McGuire 18 Nov 2015 – 27 March 2016 /

In 2009 Sally McGuire, wife of the late Edward McGuire (1932-1986) formally donated the contents of the artist's Dublin studio to the National Collection at IMMA. The artist Nick Miller was invited to respond to the contents of the McGuire studio and the Meetings: Into the studio of Edward McGuire is the culmination of this process. As part of the process Miller undertook a residency in IMMA during which he worked amongst selected material from the McGuire studio. He painted a number of people who had previously sat for McGuire such as Paul Durcan, Wanda Ryan and McGuire's step daughter Tresa Browne. The exhibition includes work by both artists and a display of McGuire's studio contents.

IMAGE Willie Doherty / Remains / 2013 / High definition video (colour and sound) / Duration: 15 minutes / Edition 2/3 / Heritage Gift 2014

Approaches to Paper in Studio Practice 18 Nov 2015 – 27 March 2016 /

This exhibition explores the many facets of artists studio practice and includes work by artists such as Edward Allington, Anthony Gormley, Mainie Jellett, Alice Maher, Hermione Wiltshire and Bill Woodrow.

Willie Doherty: Remains, 2013 18 Nov 2015 – 27 March 2016 /

Remains, 2013 by Willie Doherty, a recent acquisition to the IMMA Collection, is a powerful fictitious film based on real events. As part of a spate of punishment shootings in 2012 in Derry by a dissident republican group, a father was ordered to bring his son and another boy to a specified location to be kneecapped. Such punishments were administered by the IRA to control drug use or anti-social behaviour during the conflict in the North but are now used by dissident republicans to exert control. Commenting on the work Doherty stated "I revisit these same locations in Remains to explore the idea of the generational nature of the conflict, how it passes through families and the vicious circle that people can get caught up in."

Sam Jury
All Things Being Equal
28 Jul – 23 Aug /

Created in Dublin while Sam Jury was in residency at IMMA All Things Being Equal explores an intimate event, depicting the repetitive movements of a figure in confinement, beleaguered by water. The film work is stripped bare, borrowing from the sparse aesthetic of Samuel Beckett.

E.gress
3 Nov – 13 Dec 2015 /

E.gress is an audio-visual artwork, produced as part of a collaboration between artists Marie Brett and Kevin O'Shanahan and the Alzheimer Society of Ireland. The artwork creatively explores the concept of absence and presence and how ambiguous loss theory relates to the experience of dementia. The screening of this work will be mediated by a programme of workshops and other events exploring visitor's responses. This work will be shown alongside Daphne Wright's Plura, a film work commissioned by South Tipperary County Council, which addresses remembering or loss of memory, and associated struggles with language, conversation and relationships.
